The Klingon Bird-of-Prey is built for warp speeds and can operate and land in terrestrial environments. The K'Vort version of the Bird-of-Prey is quite larger than the older B'rel-class model. The most intriguing feature of this ship is its infamous cloaking device, which prevents the ship from being detected by both eyes and sensors.

The Klingon Bird-of-Prey was one of the best-known vessels used by the Klingon Empire across the 22nd and 23rd centuries. The mid-23rd-century iteration was a relatively small warship (though larger classes may have existed) that had a similar avian design to other Klingon Birds-of-Prey. It also played a significant role in the Battle of Binary Stars of 2256, the first battle of the Federation-Klingon War.
